(By GEORGE KALVELAGEN)

A street-parade of all returned soldiers, sailors and marines in uniform, marching behind a giant army tank from the armory at 7:00 o'clock.

Every returned service man is urgently requested to don his uniform and report at the armory at 6:45 to march in the master parade to boost subscriptions to the Victory loan. It is considered the service men's duty to aid the last liberty loan in this way.

Speeches will be made.

The line of march will be from the armory to Academy street, then east on Milwaukee street to campaign headquarters. Here the tank will stop and stirring speeches will be delivered from it by several strong speakers. Every citizen is urged to see the parade and hear the addresses which will follow.

The tank arrives in Janesville at 11 o'clock this evening. It was removed from the train early this afternoon and lumbered over to campaign headquarters where it remained on exhibition throughout the afternoon. Hundreds of people marveled.

Weights Six Tons.

The tank weighs 12,000 pounds and is rated at 30 horse power. It has been on parades in a score of cities in Minnesota and Wisconsin during the last two weeks. It is in charge of Sergeant E. Hudson and Sergeant H. J. Collier, two overseas tank corps experts, who will drive it in the parade to-night.

On Exhibition Tonight.

In order to give people living in the rural districts an opportunity to see the monster in operation, it will be driven through the streets at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. It will be on exhibition in front of campaign headquarters before and after the parade through the business district tomorrow.

Start on Sixth Cap.

Janesville must subscribe $324,650 to the Victory loan at once if the city is to be declared true blue to the government. The $500,000 mark in the city drive was reached at 11 o'clock today. Whistles blew and church bells pealed forth the glad news that another lap had been covered.

Voluntary subscriptions are still required. People with autos are asked to donate their cars for use in the county campaign. Those willing to do this should notify campaign headquarters immediately.

Buses Make Appeal.

The necessity of citizens equaling, if not bettering, their subscriptions in previous loans cannot be over-emphasized, says F. E. Buss, president today. "The speed of the drive has been somewhat slackened by the way people are cutting their subscriptions. We will reach the $825,000 goal, but not unless citizens realize the necessity of maintaining the past subscription standard."

The county has raised less than half of its quota according to figures compiled today. The total reported to headquarters is $1,066,850. Edgerton has not yet reported nor have the towns of Bradford, Beloit, Avon and Fulton.

County Reports Low.

Some of the townships are reporting amounts much smaller than at this stage in previous campaigns. Rural solicitors are urged to do all they can in the next few days to put the county over.

The complete report of subscriptions reported up to today at headquarters follows:

CITIES

Janesville $500,350
Beloit 385,250
Ebensville 50,750
Clinton 22,200
Footville 14,350
Orfordville 16,000
Center $14,350

PEACE and WAR

[By Associated Press]

If the work of carrying out the last phase of the peace negotiations progresses according to the program outlined in Paris dispatches, the treaty ending the great war probably will be signed early in the week beginning May 25.

The treaty will be presented to the Germans next Monday afternoon. Reports from the peace conference indicate that it is to be a "victor peace" and there will be no oral conversations except the most formalities when the treaty is handed over. Fifteen days will be given the enemy to consider the treaty, with an additional five days or a week for the exchange of views between the allied and German delegations.

Thus, at the latest, it is present plans are followed, May 27 should see peace reigning once more between Germany and the allied and associated governments.

A secret plenary session will be held Saturday, while Monday is a meeting with the press for the organization of the League of Nations. Italy still is not represented but her ambassador is invited to attend such conferences as the regular peace delegation from that country would attend. He has been asked, formally, to be present Monday to represent his nation at the formal launching of the League of Nations.

The League of Nations held a meeting yesterday and besides considering the disposition of the German cables gave Belgium a prior claim on $500,000,000 of the reparation money to be received from Germany.

Germany's delegation exchanged credentials with allied representatives, the meeting being brief and formal. Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau, the German foreign secretary, appeared almost overcome with the sense of his country's defeat when confronted by the allied delegations.

Hit $1,500,000.00 Mark.

Washington, May 2.—The latest individual subscriptions of $1,500,000.00 entered the Victory loan total, the country still lagged behind the record made in both the fourth and third loans.

Reports showed that the number of individual subscriptions was falling off in several districts, notably Boston, and treasury officials declared extraordinary efforts would have to be made to equal the record of 20,000,000.00 made to the fourth loan.

Cincinnati has reached its allotment with $200,000 to spare. The Cleveland district was reported to have subscribed more than $250,000,000, although official reports showed only $121,000,000. Honor flags have been awarded to 233 communities in the district. Two hundred and twenty-nine cities in the Boston district have been awarded flags.

Hundreds of subscriptions were said to have been obtained in San Francisco by the appeal carried on a card bearing the name of local men killed in action. The list was headed "the answer to all of your objections."

Among the racial groups in Chicago, the Czechoslovak are leading in the amount of sales. Six hundred and twenty-four honor flags have been awarded by the Chicago district.

DE KOVEN OPERA CAN COME HERE IF PUBLIC WANTS IT

Peter Meyer has been negotiating with the management of the De Koven Opera Co., and it can be secured for one performance here on May 13, if approval and support are forthcoming from opera loving citizens.

This can only be arrived at by a sufficient number of them joining in a petition or advance agreement to attend the performance. A management which knows that artistic productions of opera cannot be maintained without large patronage, naturally insist that cities of this size should give in advance the assurance of large patronage. Mr. Meyer will be glad to public with glad cooperation with him in this way and to be asked to open the subscription sale to be opened at once at the Myers and if the response is quick and generous by those who know what a splendid performance of "Robin Hood" in our home city will mean to them, a contract will be closed and the subscribers will be given first choice of seats as per agreement.

"Robin Hood" as most every body knows, is the most popular and successful opera ever written. The famous "Bostonians," who in their day gave the exclusive right to produce it, gave over 4000 performances of it, to ways to delight audiences. The ways of the company to secure it in the coming year at the Park Theatre in New York shows the present demand for it to be as great as ever.

The De Koven Opera Company now has the opera organized by direction authority and with the co-operation of Reginald De Koven, president. Every assistance will be given that in helping to secure it, a performance in the same success which attended its opening which in all respects is up to the old Bostonian standard. All who wish to help both themselves and the manager in this matter are requested to act quickly and call at Myers Theatre and sign the petition, or telephone their names in for the number of tickets they can use, as the option on the date in only temporary.

But they won't be running wild on the streets any more—if they want to stay away from Waukesha. This was plainly impressed on their young minds very forcibly after Judge Maxfield decided to give them an opportunity to reform. Chief of Police Gower later took a hand and ordered his officers to arrest the lads if they were ever seen on the streets after the supper hour.

MAY BASKETS ARRIVE.

May baskets made their mysterious appearance all over town and even in children's' retiring footsteps. Giggles were the only evidences that the May day gifts had not fallen from the clouds. The fancy paper basket, the work of the child's own hands, with a few wildflowers gracing it, is the most popular version of the modern May basket.

Further indications that the job was not that of an amateur came to light this morning, when it was discovered that the conspicuous dealer's license plate on the missing car, were recovered and license tags from the automobile of William Drummond substituted.

According to the deductions of Night Watchman Dennis McGinley, the garage was entered and the Madison car stolen between 4:45 when he last visited the place and 7 a. m., when employees arrived. McGinley said the morning had not been a good one. The car was not taken, but was in route through the city. When he left at this time and just before 5 o'clock, he is sure that the lights were turned off. They were on when employees came to work.

Wife Claims Assault in Money Argument

A battle over a ten-dollar bill. Ed. Strobus told Judge H. L. Maxfield in Municipal court this morning, was accountable for his appearance there on the charge of assault and battery preferred by his wife, Jennie. Just what the wife did not say, but the court held her a woman of the world, not a fool. Strobus entered a plea of not guilty and the court held him under $300 bail and set the preliminary examination for May 7, next Wednesday.

SHADE WORKERS QUIT; DISAGREE OVER HOURS

Several employees of the Hough shade company quit work this morning when failure to reach an agreement over wages and hours resulted from a conference between the company and the men. Those affected are men employed in the south plant. Company officials say only a few who were working in the lumber yards have quit.

The employees had been working 16 hours a day and 3 hours Saturday, at the rate of 30 cents an hour. It is said the employees asked for a 3-hour day and 40 cents an hour with a half day Saturday with full pay.

Officials of the company declared they were willing to meet the 3-hour day, but did not feel disposed to pay for it.

They were declared delinquent and incorrigible by Judge Maxfield, who at first decided to send the lads to Watertown. He changed his mind and Mr. Burham is looking for a strong-willed farmer who will take the boy and attempt to start him right.

The "movies" were a big attraction for the boys. The parents didn't pay any particular attention to where they went, with whom, or how, young men and women, especially the girls, were spending their time.

The "movies" as most every body knows, is the most popular and successful opera ever written. The famous "Bostonians," who in their day gave the exclusive right to produce it, gave over 4000 performances of it, to ways to delight audiences.

Such is the inconsistency of fashion, to make fancy hosiery the fad of the hour when skirts are so very long that the effect is almost lost.

Perhaps it was for the fleeting glimpse that one gets from the slit skirt that the lace and embroidered stocking was revived. Here are two very gorgeous pair of hose and very costly. The white ones are truly made for a trousseau. The black hose are startling with the lace set in at the instep.

RED RALLIES FIZZLE.

The much advertised "Red rally" scheduled for May day fizzled out in the United States, and the attempt of bolshevism to gain a hold was nipped in the bud. This nation has shown that the majority of her citizens are sane and that radical agitators can not rally strength enough to disturb our equilibrium.

The dastardly attempts which were made to jeopardize the lives of some of the prominent men of the country were checked before they were started because United States officials were on the alert. The protest parades, planned by the Reds in their endeavor to deride American justice were weakened when courageous Americans tore the Red flag from their breasts.

One man, said to be a leader of a mob in Cleveland, was slain after attempts to keep the crowd in check failed. Riots in other cities threatened to end seriously and perhaps would have, if the officials and citizens had not used excellent judgment.

But out of all the threats made by the disturbers nothing came which could give encouragement to the bolshevists and propagandists who set May day as the time to make an attempt to test out public opinion in the United States.

Those agitators obtained a pretty good idea of the sentiment and it is doubtful if they will start any more of their disturbances for some time.

However, because the attempt yesterday was unsuccessful, every good American citizen should continue right on the job and watch those radicals who are stirring up trouble. That is one of the big problems in America and too much care cannot be expended in discouraging all attempts to create discontent.

GERMAN COURAGE.

The German plenipotentiaries to the peace congress presented their credentials yesterday at a meeting with representatives of the allied governments and of the United States. So overcome by emotion was one, Count Brockdorff-Itzstaedt, the German foreign secretary and head of the delegation, that he could hardly make his way to his automobile after the very brief formalities.

If the German delegates are going to be so affected over the mere formality of presenting their credentials, how are they going to act when they get down to the business of settling up some of the accounts in the hands of the allies? It will take stout-hearted delegates to not quail at the demands that are going to be made.

The German militarists were brave enough when they thought they could conquer the world. Germans who showed emotion at that time did not display the brand which the foreign secretary displayed at Versailles. It was a lustful emotion made more obnoxious by egotistic display of power over smaller and weaker nations. It was easy to be courageous when the stage was seemingly set for a successful military campaign. Now that the settlement for the outrages which resulted from the bloody onslaught is about to be made, German delegates to the peace congress show another kind of emotion.

INTERESTING FIGURES.

The state publicity committee of the War Savings organization gives the following interesting facts gleaned from court records:

"That of every 100 men who die, three leave an estate of $10,000 or over; 15 leave an estate of $2,000 to $10,000; and 32 leave no income producing property. Of 100 widows, 18 are in comfortable circumstances; 47 are obliged to work for a living; and 35 are in absolute want, dependent upon charity."

Experience says that "those who do not save on $75 a month will never save when they earn $100 or more per month. Savings is a habit which if formed will bring comfort and contentment into a home."

"That 55 per cent of all people earn less than $2,000 a year. That if the putting aside of money is delayed until that point in earnings is reached, 55 per cent of the people will face an old age of want or will die with the knowledge that their dependents will be left in need."

"Many people do not save and give for an excuse that their income is so small that saving is impossible. Old age, sickness, loss of time, and death come to them just as surely as they do to the people with larger incomes. Saving is necessary."

The most important item in the family budget is savings. This is the item which above all others must not be neglected. Old age, sickness, loss of time, and many other demands will be made upon savings during the life time of the average individual and unless proper provision has been made, suffering and want will result. "Charity is the only recourse to the dependents of those who did not save, when old age, sickness, accident or death come."

"Buy your War Savings and Thrift stamps on regular days of each month," is the advice of those who have already saved.

HELP KEEP CLEAN.

The city health officer today issues warning to all citizens that garbage must not be dumped within the city limits. Ashes and other earthy substances may be dumped at designated places. The health officer declares that prosecutions will follow if this ordinance is not strictly observed.

The city has arranged to have its garbage handled by contractors and there is no excuse for anyone not observing the law.

It has been called to the attention of the city officials that garbage has been dumped within a few feet of residences.

Dr. Welch, the new health officer, has an opportunity to make good on his job. He has declared that he will go right after violators. If he does he will have the good will and backing of the entire citizenship.

THE VICTORY LOAN.

The manner in which the Victory loan is distributed will have a great effect upon business. If the banks are required to handle the bulk of the present loan, industries will perhaps suffer to a great extent. Industry depends upon the banks of the country for the financial aid which is necessary to the conduct of business. Already the banks of the country have subscribed to $6,000,000,000 in Liberty bonds. If they go much farther they will not have much left for other businesses.

It is the duty of every industrial concern and every business house as well as every individual to take every cents worth of Victory bonds they can handle so that the banks will be in position to devote their funds to aiding business projects which are coming out of this reconstruction period.

This is a Victory loan and the man and woman of small means is entitled to participate in the general rejoicing by offering their savings to Uncle Sam to "finish the job."

The legislature has enacted a market bill which promises to meet with the approval of all who are interested—and that virtually means the entire citizenship of the state. The measure was prepared by a legislative committee, especially appointed. That body has worked on the project for two years. The bill provides for a marketing commissioner to be appointed for a term of four years by the commissioner of agriculture, with the approval of the governor. The department will be a branch of the agricultural department and under its supervision.

The state affairs committee of the assembly has voted for indefinite postponement of the bill which would provide for state censorship of movies. The legislators were convinced that May day as the time to make an attempt to test out public opinion in the United States.

Those agitators obtained a pretty good idea of the sentiment and it is doubtful if they will start any more of their disturbances for some time.

However, because the attempt yesterday was unsuccessful, every good American citizen should continue right on the job and watch those radicals who are stirring up trouble. That is one of the big problems in America and too much care cannot be expended in discouraging all attempts to create discontent.

NOTE ON A FRIEND.

On earth there's one
Good friend of mine.

His constancy
Is true and fine.

He sticks.

No bricks

Are thrown at me

At all, but he Gets sore,

And more,

He hits 'em back,

For me.

He never turns

His back on me

And never will,

'Tis plain to see,

We're pals,

When cards

Are stacked on us

We raise a tuss;

We're there

For this chum thing,

By sing!

Bad times and good

That we have met

By me he stood

Without regret.

I know,

He so

And he knows me

Like a B.C.

He'll never lay

Me on the shelf.

This friend of mine,

He is myself.

THOMAS NELSON PAGE

"It Thomas Nelson Page resigns as Ambassador to Italy," says a New York exchange. "The United States will lose the most satisfactory ambassador it has."

Ambassador Page's proposed resignation is so viewed in many quarters; and it again calls attention to the remarkable success gained by literary men as our representatives abroad.

Page is a native of Virginia. He is now 60. He is the author of many works which have given him an international reputation as an interpreter of the south.

Especially in his studies of the American negro fame.

He was appointed ambassador extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Italy in June, 1913.

His incumbency of office during the important years of war has been marked with success and honor.

News Notes from Movieland

By DAISY DEAN

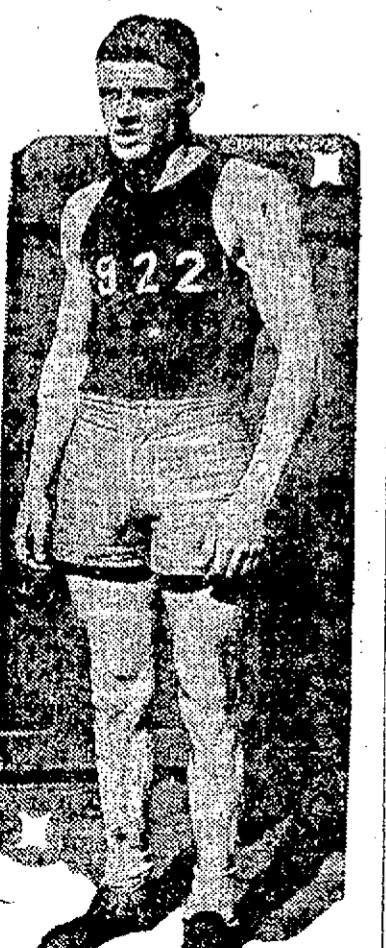

The habit of buying film rights to stories and plays is becoming so general that original scenarios are almost as scarce as the market. It will be a good thing for the motion picture industry if it means the banishment of the old type of scenario writer who took the situations of a half a dozen films and combined them into one new movie of nothing but screen tricks. But even the buying of good popular plays and stories will not solve the problem of providing films which tell new and interesting stories. "Good Gracious Annabelle" was a play of excellent wit and humor, but the screen version of it with Billie Burke as Annabelle was almost an utter failure. It was flat and on the whole a very poor show. Miss Fannie Hurst, the author of the play, reported to have said that she preferred to lie down in the street and never ever to give up to see one of her stories on the screen.

On the other hand, there are the Rex Beach stories which prove excellent in picture form. Beach was on the grounds when the scenes of "The Brand" were taken and no one who has seen the picture can call it any but first rate and interesting, sustaining and convincing.

"Heart of the Sunset" was also a good picture and his next release is awaited with great anticipation. It will be "The Crimson Gardenia."

A Kleptomaniac

By T. B. ALDERSON

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

I was heartily sorry when I made the discovery of a regular and persistent shoplifter in the Modern Idea department store. There could be no doubt as to the identity and guilt of the suspected one. She was a pretty, graceful girl of about twenty. Her winning smile and kindly eyes at once attracted the good will of the various sales clerks with whom she came in contact. For days before I detected her in her systematic pilferings I had casually, and then interestingly, observed her, and I could not get her out of my mind and was duly shocked and sorry when I saw her one afternoon slip dozen lace collars of the counter into a muff she carried.

Speculations at the Modern Idea had become so flagrant that its manager came to the detective agency where I was employed and stated his case. He had in his hand an array of figures showing a long list of goods missing from inventory and certainly never sold.

"It is only occasionally that our house man catches a shoplifter," said the manager. "Those detected are generally poor persons, novices in the line, and rarely repeat the act of stealing. Their system is clumsy, the goods taken are of little value and detection and detention give them a good scare and they rarely trouble us again. It is the bigger thefts that give us concern. When three or four rings, or bracelets, are lifted in our jewelry department, reaching high values, when five fur coats are found missing in a week and not the slightest clew to the thief is discovered, it is then that we wake up and take serious notice. These higher-ups in thievery are the pests we aim to eradicate. It is a question with us if they do not belong to a skillfully trained, organized band, and to break them up is our great purpose in view."

Boston, Mass., May 2.—An indefinite suspension was imposed on Babe Ruth Wednesday by Manager Ed Barrow, who charges him with flagrant violation of the training rules. It is declared. The announcement came from Washington. Ruth was not on hand when the team made ready to leave the capital for this city, but showed up at the last moment and caught another train. Ruth's case has been hanging fire for some time.

I don't know how it was, but although I was hardened against the professional criminal and consistently severe with such, there was born in my heart a sympathy and an interest in this fair kleptomaniac that led me through strange mental perturbations. It got so that I began to look for her daily, not as a person I was employed to run down, but as might a lover for the object of his devotion.

She came to the store regularly three times a week and always at the same time, remained nearly two hours and made a regular business of her peculations. There was nothing stealthy in her methods. Her pretty face and bright, pleasing ways dispelled all suspicion on the part of the clerks. On one occasion I noticed her transfer from a box half a dozen pairs of gloves to her capacious muff right before the eyes of the clerk, whilst she was chatting pleasantly with the floor manager, and then, as shy turned away safe with her spoils, there came to her face a smile of such supreme satisfaction that it appeared as though the zest of theft was to her the keenest enjoyment.

It had become my duty long before the end of a month to report and arrest this clever and apparently professional shoplifter. I had jotted down details of over twenty specific peculations, running from a bolt of priceless lace to a package of needles. My mind had become so filled with the girl and her doings that there was a sort of fascination about it all. I shadowed her to her home one evening. She had a room in a respectable apartment house, but when I guardedly explored her status there, all that I learned was that she was Miss Alice Leslie, that she had no friends or associates, paid her way reliably and spent most of her time at home reading and writing.

One day I had followed her from floor to floor of the big store and she was talking with a clerk at one of the counters and had incidentally secreted several articles in some secret pocket in her skirt, when an alarm of fire rang through the place. Almost immediately dense clouds of smoke filled the room where we were. There was a rush for the stairway. She was caught in the whirling mass of frightened human beings, borne off her balance and stunned by the fall. I saved her from trampling feet, carried her beyond the peril of suffocation and received her grateful thanks when she had recovered. I cultivated the acquaintance thus made and within a week was a guest at her home.

I was shown to her apartments when I called a little later on. She left her rooms on an errand to a neighbor and I sat alone awaiting her return. My attention was directed to an open desk. I noticed a written sheet. There was a list of every theft in which she had been involved at the Modern Idea, with audacious details as to the articles and their value.

When she appeared a strange impulse seized me. I could no longer endure the strain I was under. Love battled with duty. I told her who I was and my entire interest in her. She flushed when I indicated a hopeless love. She smiled whimsically as she uttered the words:

"Detected at last! Why, you have spoiled a pretty story, Mr. Arlington! In two more days I would have finished my story in a daily newspaper, 'One Month as a Kleptomaniac!'"

I understood and was overjoyed—more so when our budding friendship expanded into the realms of fervent mutual love.

GREEN FANCY

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

Copyright by Dodd, Mead and Co. Inc.

"I know the truth how about Roon and Paul," said Barnes significantly.

"You do?" sneered Sprouse. "I'll bet you a thousand to one you do not."

The girl was led to believe that they were a couple of crooks and that they fixed me in that tavern down there.

Isn't that what she told you? Well, that story was cooked up for her special benefit. Roon was the Baron Fredlund. Fredlund came up here a week or so ago to keep a lookout for his wife. The baroness is supposed to be deeply enamored of Prince Ugo. He found letters which seemed to indicate that she was planning to join the prince up here. When he heard of the arrival of a lady at Green Fancy the other afternoon, he got busy. I admit that I am the gentleman who telephoned the warning up to the prince.

They tried to head the baron and his man off at the cross-roads, but he beat them to it. If there was to be a fight, they didn't want it to happen anywhere near the house. I believe

Ugo is the one who got the baron—or Roon, as you know him. Now, that is the true story of the little affair.

"To go back to my own troubles.

When I got out into the hall night before last, after leaving her room, I heard voices whispering in Prince

Ugo's room. I beat it up the stairway into the attic. Nothing happened, so

I sneaked down to have a peep around.

The door to Ugo's room was open, but there was no light on the inside. He came to the door and looked up and down the hall. Then some one else came out and started to sneak away.

I leave you to guess the sex.

"Nicholas butted in at this unfortunate juncture. He made the mistake of his life. Ugo jumped back into his room. In less than a second he was out again. He landed squarely on Nicholas' back as the fellow turned to escape. I saw the steel flash. Poor old Nick went down in a heap, letting out a horrible yell. Ugo dragged him into the room and dashed back into his own. A moment later he came out again, yelling for help. There was only one thing left for me to do and that was to get out on the roof if possible, and wait for things to quiet down. I got out through a trap door and stayed there for an hour or so.

"Well, to shorten the story, I finally took a chance and slid down to the eaves where I managed to find the limb of a tree big enough to support me—just as if the Lord had ordered it put there for my special benefit. I was soon on the ground, and that meant safety for me. I had heard Ugo tell the others that Nicholas said the man who grabbed him was yours truly.

Can you beat it?

PETEY DINK—MAY FLOWERS BRING BAD TEMPER, PETEY!

"And now comes the maddening part of the whole business. He said that the crown jewels were gone! The thief was running downstairs when he staggered to the door. "If we are to find the crown jewels, my friend, we will first have to find Prince Ugo. He has them."

"I don't believe a word of this yar," said Barnes flatly. "You have the jewels and—"

"Look here, Mr. Barnes, I'm not going to double-cross you again. That's all over. I want to get that scurvy dog who knifed poor old Nick. If you can give me a lead, I'll try to run Prince Ugo down. And if I do, we'll get the jewels."

"We? You amuse me, Sprouse."

"Well, I can't do any more than give my promise, my solemn oath, or something like that. I can't give a bond, you know. I swear to you that if I lay hands on that stuff, I will deliver it to you. Might just as well trust me as Ugo."

"Get in the car," said Barnes suddenly. He had decided to take a chance with the resourceful, indefatigable rascal. There was something convincing about Sprouse's version of the affair at Green Fancy.

Barnes told him that he knew of Prince Ugo's fight. Sprouse looked thoughtful for a long time.

"So O'Dowd knows that I really was after the swag, eh? He believes I got it?"

"I suppose so."

"The only one who thinks I'm absolutely innocent is Ugo, of course—and Mrs. Van Dyke. That's good," Sprouse smacked his lips. "I've got a pretty fair idea where I can find Mr. Loeb. It will take a little time—a couple of days, perhaps—but sooner or later he'll turn up in close proximity to the beautiful baroness."

CHAPTER XIX.

A Trip by Night and a Late Arrival.

Shortly after sundown that evening, the Rushcroft company evacuated Hart's Tavern. They were delayed by the irritating and, to Mr. Rushcroft, unpardonable behavior of two officious gentlemen, lately arrived, who insisted politely but firmly on prying into the past, present and future history of the several members of the organization, including the new "hacker."

Barnes had devised a very clever plan for getting Miss Cameron away from the tavern without attracting undue attention. She was to leave in one of the automobiles that he had engaged to convey the players to Crowndale, where they were to "show." In case of detention or inquiry, she was to pose as a stage-struck young woman who had obtained a place with the company at the last moment through his influence.

When the hour came for the departure from Hart's Tavern he deliberately engaged the two secret service men in conversation in the taproom. Miss Cameron left the house by the rear door and was safely ensconced in Peter's automobile long before he shook hands with the "rat-catchers" and dashed out to join her. Tommy Gray's car, occupied by the four players, was moving away from the door as he sprang in beside her and slammed the door.

Peter's efforts to stay behind Tommy's venerable but surprisingly energetic car were the cause of many a gasp and shudder from the couple who sat behind him in the bounding car.

That's Why You Are Thin And Run Down, You Can Get Real Food In Father John's Medicine

You may have a good appetite and eat as much food as a person in normal health, but if you are thin and run-down the reason for it is that you eat no nourishment from the food you eat. A weakened digestive system from the diet will easily take up the nourishment contained in Father John's Medicine, because the real food elements of this old-fashioned family medicine are so prepared that even a weakened digestion will quickly turn them into solid flesh and tissue. This enables the system to resume its normal functions and a steady gain in weight and renewed strength follows the faithful use of Father John's Medicine. Remember, this pure food body-builder is guaranteed free from alcohol or dangerous drugs.

Sergeant Herman Korth, Co. D, 121st Machine Gun Battalion, 32d Division. Sergeant Korth was born in Germany, but was made in the U. S. A. His extraordinary heroism in action near Juvigny, north of Verdun, August 31, 1918, was as perilous as any could be. Under fire from machine guns and artillery, well in sight of the enemy, Sergeant Korth crawled to the crest of a slight hill and there set stakes to his own safety fire on enemy machine gun emplacements. He remained in the perilous position, setting stakes and resetting them, signalling back when our own troops were endangered by the fire of our batteries. Putting his head in a shell's mouth is play compared to Sergeant Korth's position on that hill crest. He wears the Distinguished Service Cross. (Copyright, 1919.)

The Daily Novelette

FROM STORE TO CELLAR-DOOR.

"Most certainly I will donate something to the Rummage sale. Yes, indeed. Yes, yes, I know who can be a friend or enemy, shall I be able to say that Mrs. Rufus Wigg-Wagg is not innocent or fault?" declared that woman.

And she strode up the Appalachian granite stairway, leaving the lady rummage-collector gazing up at a genuine Swopdyuk painting, trying to make out whether it was a life-size vegetable garden or specimens of mineral ore lying in a bunch.

When Mrs. Rufus Wigg-Wagg came down the stairs she was carrying a bustle—not her own, but one of her husband's—a suit of tweed with brown and purple checks, which she gave to the collector.

"The store is full. So is the man who could be seen staggering toward the door."

The man went in with two dollars and seventy cents in his old suit pockets; he came out with nothing in his new suit pockets. It was a squeed suit with brown and purple checks.

"Merciful Scott!" cried Mrs. Wigg-Wagg, taking up her curse-words, as she dropped the receiver of the telephone and tried to faint before her friend, Mrs. Scoo-Scatt, who cried out: "What is it? What-what?"

"How can I beat it?" cried the frenzied woman. "Rufus has been found intox-intoxicated on a cellar-door. Rufus Wigg-Wagg is the most temperate temperance lecturer in the world. How do you know it is him? Why, by the name found on the inside pocket of his suit! Oh, our name is ruined!"

IV.

Yep, just like the telephone message said. A squeed suit with brown and purple checks lay in a heap on a slanting cellar-door.

"Why, that ain't my Rufus!" said Mrs. Wigg-Wagg, leaping into bad humor in her disgust. "I give that there suit to the rummage sale!"

And verily, Mrs. Wigg-Wagg's bad

THE WISHING PLANE

Well, let's see. I promised to tell you today about the airplanes that was taking Jack and Jane around the world.

First of all, it was the biggest airplane you have ever seen. It had four big wings, two on each side. The bottom of it was made just like a boat, so that the airplane would float, if Captain Brave wanted to land on the water.

In the middle, where the engine was, and where they all sat, the airplane was built like a big automobile, with soft cushions, and fixed so that Captain Brave could close it all in when it was cold or rainy.

Then there was just a tiny stairway down to the boat part. The boat part had windows all around the sides.

Ladydear took the children down the stairway and they were amazed to find that the little boat had a really truly roomy sitting room, a table and chairs, a shelf full of dishes, and some chairs, and even a carpet on the floor. There was also a shelf with some books, and Jane soon discovered that lots of them were the kind that she liked to read.

"Can you really cook on this stove while we're flying?" said Jane to Ladydear. "Why, of course," said Ladydear, "that is just what we are going to do now. Don't you children know it is nearly lunch time?"

So while Ladydear cooked, Jack and Jane went to the little cupboard and found plates and knives and forks and spoons and cups and saucers enough for them all, and set the little table for lunch.

As soon as Booh smelled the cooking he came down the stairway fast as he could, and announced his desire for something to eat by turning a somersault and then sitting on his hind legs, boggling.

After Ladydear and the children had finished eating, Ladydear went up and steered the airplane while Captain Brave ate. Jane, of course, had to go with Ladydear, but Jack stayed with Captain Brave, as he had lots of questions just waiting to be answered.

"How far can this airplane fly without landing?" queried Jack.

"I don't know, Jack," said Captain Brave. "I never tried to see how far I could fly. When Ladydear and I came to America from the war we flew clear from Paris to Ladydear's home without landing."

"How high up are we now?" was Jack's next question. "We must be awfully high up, 'cause it seems miles down to the clouds."

"We are about fifteen thousand feet from the ground," said Captain

Tales of the Friendly Forest

Oxfordville News

Oxfordville, May 1.—In spite of the unfavorable weather Wednesday afternoon there was good attendance at the monthly meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society which held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. C. S. Dunn. Mrs. Dunn was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. F. E. Best.

A carload of brick was unloaded the early part of the week which will be used in the construction of Dr. and Mrs. Wells' new residence.

Several from hereabouts had planned on going to Delavan Thursday to witness the tractor demonstration. The unfavorable weather, however, prevented.

B. J. Taylor shipped a load of hogs to Chicago market Monday which brought him more money than any single load during the 40 years he has been in business. The load sold for over $4,200.

It is reported that Olaf Gilbertson has purchased a residence in Janesville and will move there in a short time. Mr. Gilbertson has just completed a new residence in the village, but the outlook for a good business for the carpenters at the county seat doubtless influenced him to change his plans.

Ammon Trostel was taken suddenly and seriously ill, one of the early part of the week. At the present time he is reported as improving.

Messamans Frank Ashby and A. J. Fuller returned Wednesday evening from the meeting of the district federation of Women's clubs held at Milton. They report an interesting and enjoyable time. They were delegates from the local club.

Sunday will occur the annual confirmation exercises at the local Lutheran church. A class of 14 will receive the ordinance at that time. An offering for foreign missions will be taken.

Mrs. Muskrat, are you home? Or swimming in the river? Just let us know if you'd like to go out riding in our Silver.

And then way, way out in the river Billy Bunny saw Mrs. Muskrat on a log, so they didn't wait but grabbed on to the Luckynobile and started off again as prettily soon they came to the barn. And there in the barn were Henry Jenny with her family of little chickens. So Uncle Lucky gave them all a carrot and a lollipop, and then the Weathercock on the old red barn began to sing:

Henry Jenny got a penny For her little brood. Give him, thanks, you little rascals. Or he'll think you're rude.

And then all the little chickens went back to the barn. And then the kind old gentleman rabbit.

Now, while this was going on, Billy Bunny had hopped into the barn, and who do you suppose he saw there? Well, you'd never guess, for it's umpteen stories ago since we've heard anything about Mr. Shantyfoot Rat. There, I've gone and told you. Yes, sir. There stood the old robber close by the oat bin.

"Good morning, little rabbit. Where have you been all this long time?"

"Oh, it's you, is it?" said Billy Bunny, for he didn't like that old rat one bit, you see, and neither did anybody else, except his wife, and maybe that was because he had his life insured for one hundred thousand dollars of corn. Just think of that!

"You needn't be so proud, just because you have a rich uncle," said old Mr. Shantyfoot Rat, and then, as a sudden Old Sic'em, the former's dog, came into the barn and away went the old rat. But the little rabbit wasn't afraid for he knew that Old Sic'em had only two teeth, and besides, he was a good-natured dog unless a tramp came around. I mean a man, of course, for the Yellow Dog Tramp was a great friend of old Sic'em.

So the little rabbit said how do you do, and then he hopped into the Luckynobile with the old gentleman rabbit and they went away.

Lost Battalion Story Told By "Y" Man Who Was First Civilian To Aid Survivors

S. B. Burrows, of New York, Says "WE'RE Americans—We Can't Surrender" Was Real Reply of Lieut.-Col. Whittlesey To German Demand To Quit

One of the most prized traditions of the war has been shattered—the famous "Go to hell" of Lieut.-Col. Charles W. Whittlesey, of the "Lost Battalion," in reply to the German demand for surrender.

The message which thrilled the world when the story of the "Lost Battalion" was told was never sent, according to Stephen B. Burrows, of New York, a Y.M.C.A. man recently returned from France who with Harry W. Blair, of Carthage, Mo., another "Y" man, was the first civilian to give aid to the American heroes when they were rescued in the depths of the Argonne Forest last October. Burrows asserts that no reply whatever was made to the booby call to the Americans to quit.

Sincerely,
Charles W. Whittlesey.

icide. All the attempts had to be made at night.

Would Not Signal Airmen

How little intention Whittlesey and his men had of surrender is indicated, Burrows points out, by their sacrifice of food and ammunition which they could have had by attracting the attention of the aviators who flew over every day trying to locate the battalion so as to drop supplies. The besieged battalion was provided with squares of red and white, oilcloth which, spread on the ground, could be seen by the airmen, but the men refused to use them for fear that the Germans would mistake the white, of these cloths for a sign of surrender.

One package of ammunition and food landed near the battalion, Burrows says. When several doughboys crept down from the hillside into which they had dug themselves and tried to get this package, the German snipers and machine gunners wiped out the little group. Col. Whittlesey ordered that no more attempts be made to get this food.

These airmen won the admiration of the entire division by their daring attempts to help the trapped men. Burrows says that the aviators, in their efforts to see the men, would come down almost to the tops of the trees, flying through a hail of bullets from the German rifles. Two of these aviators were shot down, and the wings of every machine that went over were riddled, yet the fliers returned every day and resumed their search.

Surrender Demand Arrives

It was on the fourth day that the surrender demand arrived. Toward late afternoon the men on the left of the battalion heard a hail from the woods and a German, in English, shouted that he had a prisoner with a note for the battalion commander. This prisoner was a doughboy who had been one of a party of ten that had tried to get back for help. Six were killed and the other four captured after they lawyer.

Lawmakers To Work Six Days In The Week

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, May 2.—In an effort to speed up legislation that adjournment may be taken early in June, if possible, beginning next Monday both houses of the legislature will hold daily sessions except on Sunday, from May 5 to May 16. It has been the custom to adjourn at noon on Fridays until the next morning at 10:30, with committee meetings at 10:30 Tuesday morning in time for the delayed session.

The members from the northern and western sections of the state have been trying from the start to schedule sessions for Mondays or Saturdays, but were always voted down by the Milwaukee members and those from about Madison who could not return to their homes at noon on Sunday and return Tuesday morning in time for the delayed session.

It was shown that the senate had 320 bills before it for consideration, while the assembly had 272. These, or practically all of them, will have to be bulletined for public hearings before they can be taken up. Action on the floor and unless daily sessions are held, the chances of adjournment before the middle of July or August were slim.

8-HOUR DAY BILL GOES RECONSTRUCTION PACE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, May 2.—Chairman J. H. Jensen of the assembly committee on labor introduced today that his committee has agreed on a measure which will apparently be agreeable to all. Nine amendments had been offered to the M. E. Johnson 8-hour-day bill and it was referred to the committee on labor, where a long hearing was held Wednesday. The committee held a brief conference and agreed to offer a substitute amendment to provide for a basic 8-hour day but permitting employers to work their men longer by paying time and one-half for all overtime.

The substitute amendment will probably exempt canneries, logging and lumbering industries, farming, nurses, butter and cheese factories, milk and cream, flour mills, bakeries, grocery and police and men engaged in work of a temporary nature from the 8-hour provisions.

The provision for a basic 8-hour day, with time and one-half for overtime is a compromise deemed necessary for the passage and application of the bill. The original bill would prohibit working longer than 8 hours except in matters of life and death.

The Pattern in the Mount

By REV. RUSSELL, D. D., L. L. D.
Professor of Bible Doctrine and Homiletics
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—See that thou make all things
according to the pattern showed to thee
in the mount.—Heb. 8:5.

All the best work of life consists of carrying out the plans and purposes that come in our highest and best moments of thinking.

Moses was able to construct a tabernacle of wondrous design and perfect adaptation to the needs of Israel because he had seen a pattern of it in the mount of solitude with God.

The case of Moses is not exceptional. Mental vision must always precede the creation of material form. In hours of thought we see life as it should be, and then go down into the valley of practical everyday life to patiently arrange the gathered materials of duty according to the pattern seen in the mount.

All True Patterns From God.

Moses got his pattern for the tabernacle from God. It was planned to spiritualize the thought and worship of an enslaved race. But all true patterns for life come from God, and only as we have vision of Christ in the solitude of holy meditation shall we know how to shape our lives.

If character is to be built cathedral-like in proportions and beauty, it can not be done extemporaneously. The boy must have vision of his future manhood and be ready to make any sacrifice of boyish frivolities to attain that manhood of sobriety, sincerity and efficiency. The forward look gives steadiness to life. The man who digs a foundation with no thought but of his shovel and the clay, may become shiftless and lazy, but he who has in his heart a vision of the completed home, with its atmosphere of love and friendship, works with inspiration.

Hence the difference between the mental attitude of a Michael Angelo toward a block of marble and the attitude of a common lapidary toward the same stone. To the one the day's labor means but a piece of silver, or the food and drink it will buy. To the other there is an angel within the stone, awaiting liberation, and its place of honor in a cathedral niche.

The Temple of Service.

The social, commercial and civil life of man is of such importance and has such lofty ends in the economy of God as to need the divine plan for its pattern.

The human soul is made to know God and to share all his moral beauty. All the present material existence, with its struggle for bread and pleasure, is as the transient, modern scaffolding beneath the rising arch that constitutes character. Human society is to be a brotherhood, illustrating the joy and blessedness of the divine family. The world's trade and commerce are to be God's method of distributing his bounties to all his children. Civil institutions are to reflect God's righteousness, and to bring the harmony of his truth into public affairs. The church is a spiritual temple in which every redeemed soul is a living stone, in perfect line of adjustment with the corner stone, Jesus Christ, glowing with the light of holiness, and with others constituting a spiritual sanctuary in which the sacrifice of praise and service is offered to God. For such a life man cannot furnish his own plan.

The Essentials of Life Building.

Vision, memory and fidelity are the essentials of the true life.

Moses could not have received the pattern without waiting in the solitude with God. Only on the heights and in the quietness could the vision of his holy task come to his soul. We, too, must heed God's invitation for holy fellowship; and provide for hours of meditation when he can speak to us. The failure of most lives is the failure to receive vision. Life's cares and pleasures hold back from the mount of reverence.

Vision must be followed by memory.
The pattern seen in the mount must be carried in the heart, and its lines translated into the structure of the life. Every day life to glory God must be effort in the light of holy memory. The vows made when we were in trouble, and the better life planned amid afflictions, must be paid and lived if we follow the method of Moses in dealing with the pattern in the mount.

To vision and memory must be added fidelity. The difficulty of building today is to find contractors who will in all points follow specifications.
Christ, the divine architect, has furnished the blue prints for our character building. Our highest thought should be that no shadow of dis-temperament shall sadden his face as our temple of character and service is viewed.

General Gouraud Tells Mrs. Ward Of Most Critical Moment in War

(By Mrs. Humphrey Ward.)

A motor car is scattering the children, and an ordnance descends. A note, written by General Gouraud's own left hand—he lost his right arm at the Dardanelles—invites us to dinner with him and his wife. For this the motor will return for us. So joyously we make what simple change we can, and in another hour or so we were waiting in the general's study for the great man to appear. He came at once, and I took back upon the evening that followed as one of the most interesting that Fate has yet sent my way.

As he entered I saw a man of slight, erect figure, lame indeed, and with a heavy, weary sleeve, but conveying an immediate and startling impression of some formidably commanding the slender frame. He had a brown beard, dark hair and a pair of clear, blue eyes; shrewd, indeed, and penetrating, but singularly winning, a soldier, a most modern soldier, at once with an infusion of something romantic, a touch of thought, or melancholy, a charm that recalled old France. He was dressed in a dark blue mess coat, red breeches and top boots, with three or four orders sparkling on his breast. His manners were those of an old-fashioned and charming courtesy. Like Marshal Foch and Gen. Castelnau, Gen. Gouraud is a Catholic.

Dinner was very abundant and gay. The rooms of the big house were singularly bare, having been stripped by the Germans before their departure of everything portable. But on re-enters the entering French, finding nothing left in the fine old house, even of the nobility which had been left there in 1871, discovered a chateau belonging to the Kaiser close by, and requisitioned from it some of the rarest varieties of life. There was a certain satisfaction in drinking one's Bordeaux out of a glass marked with the Kaiser's monogram; akin to that which I felt one day north of St. Omer when we drew up at a level crossing to let a goods train go by, and I watched the interminable string of German trucks labeled Magdeburg, Essen, Duiseldorf and the rest, which seemed to bring visibly home to me the beginning at least of reparation and restoration.

The relations between the general and his staff were very pleasant to watch. After dinner, there was an interesting talk of the war. I asked the general what had seemed to him the most critical moment of the struggle.

Mutiny was Crisis. He and his chief of staff looked at each other gravely an instant and then the general said: "I have, no doubt of it at all. Not May 27 (the break through on the Aisne), not March 21 (the break through at St. Quentin), but May and June, 1917,

Training School Notes

Good Salary Increase: One of the graduates of the training school is teaching in the town of Lima. She has been doing such good work that everybody wanted her to go back again this year. She asked $80 a month, but the board said she was worth more, and offered her $96. As the boys said, "Now, what do you know about that?"

To Teach at Milton Junction: Miss Mildred Waterman, a member of the class of 1919, will teach the second and third grades in the Milton Junction state graded school next year. Miss Waterman was offered the position without any solicitation, a honor part. This room had been taken the past six years by Margaret Vickerman who graduated from the Training school in 1914.

To Teach in Clinton: Miss Florence Nelson, who graduated from the training school in 1912, will teach the primary grades in the Clinton public school the coming school year. Miss Nelson has been teaching the country school in joint district number one, town of Clinton, for several years past. The salary this year, including the state bonus, is about $90 a month.

Junior-Senior Banquet: The eighth annual junior-senior banquet will be held Wednesday evening, May 21. On this occasion the members of the senior class will attend their class day exercises, including the prophecy, history, poem, class will, etc. A special committee is now composing a class song which will be sung at the dinner also on commencement day, June 14. The members of the class have ordered their rings and pins, and the commencement invitations have been decided upon.

Arbor Day Program: Today, the Philanthropic Literary society is presenting the usual Arbor and Bird day program. This program has special reference to the conditions and needs of the country school and the country teacher. She stated department issues a manual for Arbor and Bird day every two years.

May Bulletin Issued: This week the training school is sending out the ninth number of the fifth volume of the Rock County Educational Bulletin. This bulletin is published jointly by the county superintendent and the training school principal. The April and May issues are being sent to every high school girl in Rock County, about 1,200 in all.

Does Substitute Teaching: Miss Ruth Sayre substituted in district No. 12, town of Lima, Monday. The regular teacher is Miss Mizpah Bennett, Milton. Miss Sayre is a graduate of the Milton high school and will complete her course in the training school in June.

War Savings Society: The training school has organized a war savings society with Miss Julia Doherty as president and Miss Elizabeth Billings as secretary. Miss Marie Dobson, one of the teachers, will act as the treasurer. Each student will use the thirty cards for the rest of the year. Applying for Positions: The mem-

STATE LAW EXAM IS AGAIN CENTER OF FIGHT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, May 2.—The old fight to repeat the statute authorizing the Supreme court to admit to the bar of the state bar the representation of a diploma from the college of law of the University of Wisconsin any applicant to whom the diploma was granted, was taken up Thursday afternoon before the assembly judiciary committee.

The bill under discussion was introduced two weeks ago upon request of Assemblyman George A. Bowman, Milwaukee, a graduate of the Marquette school of law. Walter D. Corrigan, of Milwaukee, was the only one to appear in favor of the bill. He argued that no one should be permitted to practice law in Wisconsin until he had successfully passed the examination of the state board of bar examiners.

Dean Richards, of the college of law, University of Wisconsin, T. C. Richards and John B. Sanborn, Madison attorneys, appeared against the bill. Dean Richards declared that the graduates of the university law school spend on an average of 18 days in examinations during their course, and that when they have successfully passed them they have demonstrated their knowledge of the law better than in a one, two or three day examination conducted by the state board.

Atty. John B. Sanborn advocated raising the standard of lawyers by requiring every applicant for admission to the bar of the state to be a graduate of a recognized and reputable law school.

In closing the argument on the bill Attorney Corrigan stated that he had been told that when a similar bill had appeared before the legislature in former years Chief Justice J. B. Winslow had appeared against it, and he understood the reason the chief justice was not appearing against the bill this time was because the supreme court was divided on the subject.

Rev. Melrose to Preach on "The Working Man"

Sunday has been named by the government as "Employment Sunday." The president and secretary of labor here urged the public to give careful attention to the problem of demobilization and unemployment. Employers are urged to give preference to government employment service so that returning soldiers and sailors may be taken care of. Parents and friends of boys in the service are asked to use their influence to get the discharged men to come back to their home towns at once, not tarry in the large centers of population.

Rev. J. A. Melrose of the Federated church announced that he will speak on Employment Sunday on the theme "The Working Man and a Working God."

Edgerton, In Baseball Frenzy, Waits for Janes

BICK LOOKS LIKE BEST BET IN BOX RIGHT NOW

(By K. L. EAGON.) Father "Allie" Bick, the tall, slim, sunpaw, or C. A. Cachel, the White Wonder, will start in the box for Janes against Edgerton, Sunday, at the latter's village.

Bick has had a good task in the box for nearly three weeks and is expected to start Sunday. As things stand now, he will be called upon to shoulder the pitching burdens, and if Cachel shows up (there's a letter out for him) he will be placed in one of the gardens.

Portsideon Feels Fit.

The young portsideon said today that he never felt better in his life.

"I don't like 'em Sunday, it'll be the biggest surprise I ever had in my life," Bick said. "I've been taking a lot of workouts despite the rain and bad weather, and I'm fit."

The writer was looking for some word from Tommy Cachel today. Tommy said before leaving Janesville last Sunday night that he could be counted upon to catch next Sunday's game.

Little George Berger showed up last night and was signed for Sunday's game. We don't know as yet just where Berger will capture. The diminutive veteran expressed a desire to take a whiff at the box and he will be given a chance if the occasion arises.

Huge Crowd Expected.

Manager Smith and Publicity Director Menhall of the Edgerton High-way Trailer club, talked with Manager Eason over the long distance telephone again this morning, and Smith and Menhall declared that all Edgerton will be in a baseball frenzy.

"We expect a bigger crowd at next Sunday's game than any ever assembled at a public event in this country," said Mr. Menhall over the phone this morning. "More than 150 persons turned out last Sunday in a downpour of rain and the extreme cold to witness the ball game, which lasted five innings. We should have between 500 and 600 persons there Sunday if it is a fair day, and things begin to look like fair, warm weather."

Start at 12 P. M.

The Janes will meet at the Myers hotel at 11:45 a. m. Sunday morning.

Sharply at noon (12 o'clock) the Janes will leave for Edgerton, then, expecting to arrive there shortly before one o'clock, when they will give the Janesville half an hour to get in their uniforms and an hour for practice. The game will be called promptly at 2:30.

J. A. Murphy wrote the writer a special delivery letter from Chicago yesterday, saying that he would be back in Janesville not later than Saturday evening, and would affiliate in the game at Edgerton Sunday.

The Janes will be in to Edgerton to play baseball Sunday if all of the players have to get out on down town corners Saturday night and beg town corners Saturday night and beg for sufficient cash to pay their fares. And yet the club's funds stick at $7.20. A formal bill has been forwarded to the local business man who has neglected to remit $10 for ten tickets purchased at 75 cents. Unless the $10 is forthcoming before tomorrow night, the Janesville will be in a precarious position relative to the transportation question.

Much Betting Done.

There was increased speculation today on Sunday's game. Plenty of Edgerton money has been sent down to Janesville, and there seems to be an inside feeling that the Janes stand a good chance to beat the Edgerton. There are plenty of Edgerton spectators willing to risk some money against the Janesville outfit. Until the Janes' lineup has been definitely settled upon, the betting will stay mostly at odds. Here is the way the Janes' lineup looks just now:

Kaluskas, cf.

Doppe, b.

Park, ss.

Menzel, rt.

Viney, lf.

Schilling, 2b.

Cachel, 3b.

Crake, c.

Bick, p.

Utility—Berger, Britt, Green.

This lineup is only tentative, but the nine players who represent Janesville at the start will be picked from the twelve named above.

Schilling at Second.

Walt Schilling agreed to play second and when interviewed last night said he would put some pep into the game. We believe he can do it. Harry Britt has not showed up as yet, but we hope he will be on the hand wagon when he pulls out at noon Sunday.

Cachel will be brought down to take care of any emergency. Cachel is a pitcher, an infielder, and an outfielder, and will be a good man to have on hand when the gong rings at Edgerton, Sunday.

James highly respected.

Janesville's victory over the strong Rockford Maroons at the fair grounds last Sunday has made the Janes highly respected in Edgerton and it is thought that a great crowd will turn out to see them.

There will be plenty of transportation conveniences for all Sunday. Twenty or thirty taxicabs will be out on the job, and there should be a number of more taxicabs willing to "take on another."

"Big Ben" Menzel is the happiest bird in 39 states today. Menzel believes his wing is returning to form. The big fellow had cause to be proud of his batting and fielding proficiency last Sunday. He was seen to make money box yesterday and he would make two hits today. And he tried in vain to get more takers. Attastaff Fire Show.

Pire is another who should show well in Sunday's game. Less hasn't recovered his batting eye up to and including last Sunday, but he, too, was confident today that he would start killing the ball next Sunday.

With "Pete" Fleming on the mound the Blackhawks will stack up against the Footville White Sox in nine innings of fast baseball at the fair grounds Sunday afternoon. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

The Sox won over the Hawks in five innings of play in the rain at Footville last Sunday. The Hawks will have the same lineup as played last Sunday and it is hoped to annex a win. McCue will do the receiving for the Hawks.

Blackhawks Meet Footville at Fair Grounds, Sunday

Edgerton tonight, Manager Smith announced and also all tomorrow afternoon.

We Need Baseballs!!

If the team can't get hold of some baseballs, they will practice at the fair grounds TOMORROW (SATURDAY) AFTERNOON, beginning promptly at 2 p. m. All those players who can obtain permission to remain away from their work Saturday afternoon, please be sure and do so, as we have not had a lick of practice all week and want to get some of the fitness off.

The Edgerton team will practice in the fair grounds.

High School Seniors Plan for Graduation
